

Fragments of a Diary?

Text is no longer reliable: The names on maps are incorrect, equipment manuals have passages from a diary interpolated into them, and every dial on the engine reads ANNA.

Here are the sections you've found so far:

<missing fragments>

I thought we might direct the river into every home, and let it run there in each,
a fountain fresh and sweet. And when they said no I thought to go down under it myself. And now here I am, an old innkeeper who watches it run by unchanged every day. If only they had let me! When I was hip deep in the river with twenty more feet of it overhead!
And talking to princes!

<missing fragments>

A living instrument, the machinery of the tides. Solutions, filtrations, putrefactions, reverberations. Purpose,
intention, endeavor.

<missing fragments>

I have sent to Prague for my ancient books.
There is no eternity in fire and heat!

This is the mistake that has strangled our art. The greatest alchemists have been misled! All is water, all is motion. I shall take the sea as my alembic and the souls within to do the great work.
Solution, exaltation, sublimation
I was wrong I was wrong I was wrong

<missing fragments>

ANNA help ANNA ANNA